York County Community Foundation Grants $46,516 to Support Housing, Human Services and More

YORK COUNTY, S.C. – The York County Community Foundation recently awarded $46,516 in grants to 18 nonprofits. The grants will support projects and programs that address food insecurity, human services, housing and other community needs in York County.

Grants from this cycle include $2,556 to Adult Enrichment Centers to increase organization and safety in the Thrive Program’s kitchen space; $2,500 to Family Promise of York County to support case management services for families experiencing homelessness; and $3,500 to Fort Mill Care Center to purchase food items and provide additional prescription medications to clients.

“We are so grateful for the recent grant we received from York County Community Foundation, which allowed us to improve our kitchen workspace, which in turn means we can continue to serve over 467 meals per month out of our small kitchen space,” said Samantha Kriegshauser, chief executive officer of Adult Enrichment Centers. “This improvement allows the staff and members to utilize the space more efficiently, safely, and together! We value our members’ help and engagement in the program and helping to serve meals is important for their self-esteem.”

The YCCF is a regional affiliate of Charlotte-based Foundation For The Carolinas. The grants were awarded by the York County Community Foundation’s local Board of Advisors as part of its annual grantmaking program. The YCCF has invested more than $900,000 in projects and programs that support York County residents since 1992.
